

ETERNITY

Eternity is not a biblical word; it is an English word that gives us a misunderstanding of what eternity means. It has nothing to do with time. It is a realm in which there is no time. Past, present and future are all now.

Jesus was crucified before the foundation of the world and perfected forever those who are in the process of transformation in the time realm.

In the time realm none of us are perfect yet, some parts of our life are awesome and others a train wreck. God does not say you cannot enter my realm until you deal with the train wreck.

All change comes from exposure to God, entering into his realm where we become aware of Him.

Some areas of our life we may be mature, but others we are still child like or damaged. But our Father is not looking at it from that perspective, he always sees the whole. All the wonderful thoughts God has for us never change because they are eternal. And we have access to the heart of God, to that realm of eternity where we can experience his affection towards us.

He is working within us to restore us to that eternal image. Not just to experience his love for us, but to become an expression of that love to others and to creation so that it begins to respond to us.

When the Father looks at us it brings pleasure to his heart. We are the apple of his eye; we are the treasure of his heart. So we are in a process of restoration where we begin to think about ourselves the same way he does about us and those thoughts flowing into our soul transforms it.

Our brain does not originate thought, but actually it's a consciousness of how we view reality. But our spirit also has a consciousness. Our spiritual consciousness is in heaven and in the realms of heaven.

Our soul is like a switchboard which interprets what comes from our brain, our physical being and the world around us, but also what comes from our spirit as it connects to the realms of heaven.

Our soul has developed from the outside in through its connection with our body. There has to be a separation of our soul from our spirit and then a reintegration of our soul and spirit, so that our soul becomes a servant of our spirit and not our body.

The flesh is that union of soul and body that acts in independence of God, which gives us a consciousness apart from God. Every manifestation of the flesh in us, clouds our spirit so that our thoughts and feelings are contrary to our spirit.

The separation of our soul and spirit deals with the ego of our soul needing affirmation in a wrong way to affirm its own identity independently from God.

Once that gets separated and then reintegrated where our soul comes into agreement with our spirit we begin to experience wholeness and that begins to change everything for us.

When we come to the point where soul and spirit are in agreement then we can live in heaven and on earth at the same time. This is why our soul has to go through a transformation process because our soul is veiling us from the spirit realm of God's kingdom.
