

THE LAW OF FOCUS

We are deluding ourselves when we focus on the bad. A negative focus is self-deluding.

When we focus on the negative it empowers it. When we focus on the negative, darkness flows into us and minister's deception, life becomes hard.

Focus must always empower, it is a spiritual law, the law of focus. What we focus upon captures our heart and claims our attention. Focus has no preference of its own; it is our will that determines our focus. Our focus is determined by the inclination of our heart, it is a tendency that we have developed.

Desire can determine our focus. When our desire becomes strong enough, then we can set our heart upon that desire.

Once our spirit becomes alive unto the lord, then being filled with the Spirit becomes a matter of focus. It is through our focus that we drink of the Lord.

Through the law of desire, honor and focus we can learn how to be continually filled with the Spirit of the Lord.

No one is born a negative person, always expecting the worst to happen. It is a learned behavior that we have to unlearn. Our soul has been conditioned from the outside in. We have learned how to murmur, grumble and complain through our focus upon the circumstances outside of us.

Now we are learning Christ, learning how to be transformed from the inside out, learning how to be filled with the Spirit, so that the life of God flows through us and has an impact on the things outside of us.

Through the life of God strengthening our spirit, we can change our perceptions through the revelation of God's thoughts. Our mind is always renewed by the life flow of the Spirit.

2 cor 3: ¹⁸But we all, with open (to unveil) face (1-motion towards 2- the eye) beholding as in a glass (continuous action, to mirror, to present a clear and correct image of, beholding the glory of the lord reflected) of the Lord, are changed (occurring now, 1- with-denoting change of place or condition- 2-to form, to change into another form, it is a change of life form-from a natural life form into a spiritual life form)(transform- to change somebody completely, convert to different energy) into the same image (root-to be like, a prototype) from glory (essence-"identifying nature-the quality or nature of something that identifies it or makes it what it is" of God) to glory (what Jesus is), even as (just as) by the Spirit of the Lord.

Transformation means with-to form. Repent means with-to think. Transformation starts with repentance. As our spirit joins to the lord, God grants repentance. Through contact with the Spirit of God, his thoughts flow into us so that we see through his perspective. As this becomes our focus, our mindset, we are formed into that image.

Together with God to think, together with God to form, we are transformed by the renewing of our mind. The life of God flows into the revelation gate of our spirit, into the mind gate of our soul, and as we think in our heart so we become.

Transformation is living by a new life source, to convert to a different energy, living by the abilities of the Lord.

As the life of God flows into our mind we are no longer made disillusioned by our circumstances or negative experiences. We can exchange all negative thinking through our focus and connection with the Lord. We are never more than a step or two away from a transformed way of living, walking according to the Spirit and no longer according to the flesh.

It is the object of our focus that has the most power over our lives. When we focus on the negative, we allow its power into our lives. It shapes us by stealing our joy, and rendering us powerless over the circumstances of life.

When we set our mind on heavenly things through our focus on the Lord, the life and peace of the Lord flow into us. The mind set on the Spirit is life and peace. A mindset cannot be changed; it must be replaced.
