

WE ARE SPIRIT

Knowing our spirit, in all its forms and functions, is the key element that allows us to grow as sons of God.

Who are we?

Our being is defined by the source of its origin. We were created a spirit being, and born a human being.

God the creator, determine that from him would come forth a creation composed of his substance in nature.

Genesis 1:26 – then God said, let us make man in our image, according to our likeness;

God created man in his image. This means that whoever looked upon man, would recognize God in him. As Jesus, the last Adam, would say to his disciple Philip, he who has seen me has seen the father.

Jesus came to restore what had been lost as the result of the fall. In his work and in his own being, Jesus reflects the identity and attributes lost by the first Adam.

It is in the understanding of where we come from and in whose image we were created, that we will find the answer to our true identity. That image is what answers the question of who we truly are; that is, sons of God.

Our spirit is that divine substance from which we were formed. In essence, that is who we are: spirits that come from God.

Hebrews 12:9 – furthermore, we have had human fathers who corrected us, and we paid them respect. Shall we not much more readily be in subjection to the father of spirits and live?

God is the father of all spirits, and this is the true and eternal nature, which gives us the identity and the understanding of our origin.

Our basic nature is not the natural one, but the spiritual one. Before we were humans, we were spirits known and named by God.

Jeremiah 1:5 – before I formed you in the womb I knew you; before you were born I sanctified you; I ordained you a prophet to the nations.

Adam was created to understand and move in two dimensions simultaneously; the natural and the spiritual.

Adam could perceive the natural world through his physical senses, but at the same time he had his spiritual senses totally activated and could see the spiritual reality in all its dimensions.

Adams earthly nature was covered with the glory of his own spirit, which was in itself a deposit at the very life of God.

For the spiritual and the earthly to work together, it is necessary to have a third element that will allow them to communicate and make them compatible with each other.

For this purpose, God created the soul.

We are created spirits, which live in a body and have a soul to understand and process both the spiritual and the natural worlds.

Our spirit and soul are composed of a series of systems and organs, which allow them to discern and know both the spiritual and natural worlds.

The spirit of man does not have access to the natural world except through the soul.

The soul of man corresponds to everything the spirit of man is. It is like a mirror that reflects everything that is the spirit so it can be decoded. Once the soul interprets what comes from the spirit, it transfers it to the body, because the 3 parts are intrinsically linked together.

The body will then receive either the benefits that come from the Spirit of God or the consequences that come from the spirit that is separated from God and contaminated.

Eating from the tree of life was the divine provision given so that man could live eternally in paradise. The consequence of eating from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil is the separation of the dimensions of the spirit, from the dimensions of the earth, and it continues to do so in those who still eat from it.

When Adam and his wife took this step and decided to eat from the alternative tree, they died to their communion with God. Their spirit fell into a state of sleep and their soul, which had been covered by the splendor of their spirit, was left naked and condemned to death. It is the condition of the spirit, whether it is alive or dead (state of sleep), which determines the final destiny of the soul.

After the fall, the spirit lost its dominion and power and its ability to rule. The soul had become now the King and Lord of man, governed by the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. In that moment the ego or the self rose up within man, which would oppose the spirit, just as the 2 trees oppose each other.

Jesus Christ is the tree of life, who is the light of eternal knowledge. He is the first light that illuminates the understanding of the spirit to know God and his unfathomable mysteries. He is the very life of the spirit that awakens the whole being, spirit, soul and body in order to fill it with his eternal essence.
